New Year's Resolutions By: Ahlam Hujran

Fresh new goals can regularly create two feelings: Hope and fear. We trust that we'll effectively transform ourselves to improve things – while fearing that we won't. New Year's resolutions are personal goals that we set at the start of each year. It's a time to take stock of who we are and the way we live and resolve to improve ourselves. Personally, I have multiple goals and you should too. My own objectives would be, improve my mental wellbeing, improve social connections, stop procrastinating, travel, confront a fear, improve my sleep, and lastly, I want to develop a hobby. Focus on the process, not the results. We can control inputs – we can't control the results. So, focus your attention and effort on what you have control over: The practice. If you do this, the results will take care of themselves. However, if you focus all of your effort on the end goal, you may feel overwhelmed or like nothing is changing and give up

HAPPY New Year!

Martin Luther King Jr. By: Jamal Morshed

Martin Luther King Jr. became the predominant leader in the civil rights movement to end racial segregation and discrimination in America during the 1950s and 1960s, and was a leading spokesperson for nonviolent methods of achieving social change. His eloquence as a speaker and his personal charisma—combined with a deeply rooted determination to establish equality among all races despite personal risk—won him a worldwide following. He was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964 and was selected by Time magazine as its Man of the Year. His “I Have a Dream” speech, which is now considered to be among the great speeches of American history, is frequently quoted. His success in galvanizing the drive for civil rights, however, made him the target of conservative segregationists who believed firmly in the superiority of the white race and feared social change. He was arrested over 20 times and had his home was bombed. Ultimately, he was assassinated on April 4, 1968, on the balcony of a motel where he was staying in Memphis. A monument to Dr. King was unveiled in the national capital in 2012.

Answer: There are nine Mustards in the family. Since each daughter shares the same brother, there are six girls, one boy and Mr. and Mrs. Mustard.
