

World Hijab Day

The goal of this event is to promote diversity among the students at our school. It also means to allow the girls in our school to experience the beauty of wearing the hijab.

Women's Head Coverings By Different Religions

The head covering isn't exclusive to Muslim Women. As you can see in the picture on the side, many religions have a designated head covering for women. Actually, the literal translation of the Arabic term "hijab" is "cover," which means that any of the head covers in the picture on the left can be called a hijab. As a matter of fact, any modest (loose, unrevealing, and long) clothing can be considered a hijab.

The common misconceptions about women and girls who wear a hijab are many. Much of the public views them as terrorists, or oppressed women and girls, when that is not the case. A lot of girls actually choose to wear the hijab. It is an obligation, however, every girl can choose whether or not she wears it. The hijab is not meant to make a girl stand out, rather, it's to preserve her beauty and guard her modesty.
